New Schedule and Ticket Pricing Announced for Atlantic Slam W

A statement from John Abbott, GM Eastlink Centre Charlottetown:

“We have been notified that Ole Miss will no longer participate in the Atlantic Slam W (MTE) tournament. To ensure this is a successful event, we have shifted to an alternate plan and new tournament schedule.

What is most important is that we are still going to see lots of NCAA Division 1 women’s basketball here in November. This is a big change, but these are in-season games, and they count. To move us forward, we have a new game plan to make this a positive experience for the teams, sponsors and of course the fans. Available starting today is a new tournament schedule and new ticket pricing, including a special group rate for basketball teams.

For those who have already purchased tickets or a suite, the price difference will be reimbursed over the next few weeks and our team will contact you directly to coordinate this. We have also extended the deadline for our two contests – Courtside Coaches and The Postcard Project – to give more people the chance to participate.

We want to thank all of our supporters – ticket purchasers, sponsors, government partners and event volunteers – along with our event partners the Big South Conference and On Ice Entertainment. It’s amazing to see how everyone has pulled together and pivoted to stay on a positive path forward.

We look forward to hosting the inaugural Atlantic Slam W (MTE) tournament here November 22 to 24.

Thank you for your continued support.”
